AUSTRALIAN SPORTS.

Hunting the Kangaroo and Horse-Racing, Shooting, and Coursing.

"By Jove! look at that fruit stand," said A. A. Clayton, of Melbourne, to a Chronicle reporter the other day. "We have no such display as that anywhere in the colonies. The first thing that struck me on my arrival here was the wealth of your fruit market. Oh, certainly we grow good fruit. The orange groves of Paramatta, in New South Wales, are famours all over the colonies, and there is a tremendous export from Port Jackson to all parts of the continent. They were tried in Victoria, but orange culture proved a failure in that colony. Do I think we would import oranges from California? No; decidedly not. Good oranges sell there for 25 cents a dozen, and we can afford that."

"A very dismal picture was drawn of the colony of New South Wales a short time ago. Is it really in a bad way?"

"It is. The interests there are of wool, and a friend of mine tells me it was perfectly pitiable to see the various stations. Men were continually riding round shooting sheep, in order to put them out of their misery. Thousands were dying for want of water, and in many instances they were driven long distances for water. The country for miles was as bare as the palm of your hand."

"What is your most interesting sport in Australia?"

"Kangarooing. It is one of the most exciting sports in the world. Large meets are organized, parties of from twenty to thirty joining in these hunts. They ride to the kangaroo grounds, and one is sighted, the dogs are released and the horses are given their heads. If the Australian horse is well up in his business, and if you let him take you instead of you trying to take him, he will carry you safely, avoiding the trees and underbrush. A good strong kangaroo will give you a long chase, and very often the dogs cannot follow him. In this case, when the horseman gets up to the kangaroo, he takes off his stirrup and strap and knocks the animal over the head, which effectually stuns him. He is then killed and skinned. The hindquarters are given to the dogs. Yes, it is good enough eating, but too strong to be palatable to those of delicate taste. The tail, on the contrary, is considered by epicures to be delicious when made into soup."

"Does the kangaroo ever kill the dogs?"

Yes; the kangaroo is very powerful with his hind legs, and will strike at the dogs with them, cutting them into pieces. You know the spring they make is from the tail and the hind legs. They are wonderful creatures, for they travel just as rapidly when they carry their young with them in the pouch."

"How high are they?"

"The average size is about four and a half feet high, but the 'old-man kangaroo' is often six feet high, and is very fierce when cornered, and is known to have ripped men open with a single kick from one of his hind legs. You know we imported foxes from home into Victoria, just for sport, and they have become a horrid nuisance, especially around Geelong and Ballarat, and the most ardent votaries of sport have no hesitation in shooting them whenever they have a chance."

"Do you ever shoot the kangaroos?"

"Yes, sometimes; but of course there is not so much sport as there is in riding. We take well-trained dogs, which round them and run them past you; then we have the opportunity to fire at them, aiming at the head, for if you strike them elsewhere it does not take much effect, and besides it spoils the skin."

"What do you do with the skin?"

"The skin is very useful. It makes good rugs, and boots and shoes are also made from it. I tell you, there is another sport that is largely indulged in, and that is swan shooting. We go out as much for the flesh, but it is rather strong eating. There are any amount of black swans to be found in the colonies, but the white variety is somewhat of a rarity. Occasionally we go in for pelican shooting, but the bird is dying out and in a few years I do not think we will have any left. The greatest sport I think we have is hare coursing. The dogs are trained, and we have regular meets. We have a man whom we call the 'slipper,' who has the dogs in leash and is on foot. The judge, who is mounted, follows close on his heels. They go along until the hare is started, but both dogs must catch sight of the hare before they are slipped, so as to give them both a fair chance. They are then, loosed, the judge follows, and the dog that oftenest turns the hare wins the prize. You know that often the dog which kills the hare loses the prize. Should the hare come on a fence, the dog that jumps it gets the prize, even though he may not have turned the hare as many times as his rival."

"How do the Americans compare with the English in the colonies?"

"By Jove! you are looked on as a very smart race. Everything or anything that is American is regarded as something extraordinary. You know we took the idea from you of having trotting matches; before we did only running races. But Miller, a pugilist, brought over a trotting horse from the United States, and since then—that is three years now—trotting has become somewhat fashionable, and I am really of opinion that soon they will be patronized fully as well as our running races. You should see how our ladies go to the races. They dress then more than they do for a ball or a court reception. I know of one lady who had her dress beaded with diamonds and had it deposited in the bank for safety to wear on a cup day, but, unfortunately the weather was unpropitious. In fact, we revive in our memories Epsom of England."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Two Cats.

A lover of cats relates the following: "One day for some reason the dinner was postponed, but the cat came in at the usual hour. She was evidently much disconcerted at seeing nothing going on, walked once or twice disconsolately round the table, then disappeared. Shortly after she returned with a mouse, which she lay on her master's plate, then going away, she came back with a second mouse, which she put on her own plate. She postponed further proceeding until her master's return, when she immediately began to pur and rub herself against his legs, as much as to say, 'See how nicely I have provided for you.' Between this town and the village of Holywood there is a country house which happened to take fire last week. The cat of the house, which had access to the servant-maid's apartments, ran up and pawed the young woman's face. Being very drowsy, the girl turned to sleep afresh. The cat, however, after some interval, returned, and proceeded to scratch the girl's face to such purpose that she awoke and, smelling the fire, wakened the other members of the house, and the flames were extinguished."

Addicted to the Bottle.

The fashionable girl of the summer resorts is addicted to the bottle, it appears. This is sad, but not so sad as it seems. It is not the old-fashioned black bottle of their fathers, nor the modern flask of their beaux. It is of glass, an inch in diameter and from six to ten inches long. It is elaborately cut and ornamented with precious metals, and is just about as useful as the cane is to the dandy, and as continuously in her company, for she carries it with her to the bathing beach and to dinner. She toys with it; she flirts with it; she smells of it; and if it does not, like the old-fashioned bottle, steal away her brains that is not the bottle's fault.

"Elegant" is the latest slang word. It is applied to everything from a cheap cigar to a thunder-storm.

Gross Carelessness.

During the war with the South there was a certain company of raw recruits marching rapidly to the front. Their way to the out-post led along a Virginia road which stretched over rolling country that was dotted here and there with clumps of trees. At a turning they saw ahead of them a pine grove which grew about a hundred yards to the left of their path, but they were unaware that in its midst a squad of rebel cavalry was lying in ambush. As the company got abreast of the timber the guerillas opened a scattering fire on their flank. It was the first time that the recruits had heard bullets singing over their heads, and, moreover, they had no idea that the enemy was within five miles of them, so that they were uncertain how to regard this demonstration. The squad halted, undetermined what to do; and one big German, after putting his hands to his mouth trumpet fashion, shouted toward the trees: "Stob shooding," and then turned excitedly to the officer in command, exclaiming: "What de tevil dey about? Don'd dey know dey is some beebles here?"—Life.

Swallowed a Doll.

A remarkable story comes from Woodland. A little child of that town, aged about 2 years, has been ailing for some time, and, as the local physicians could not discover the cause, the parents took the child to San Francisco, where it was examined by the leading physicians, who were equally as unsucessful in their search for the ailment. It seemed that the infant must slowly die, and the parents resigned all hopes of saving its life. But while the little one was receiving the customary morning bath a short time since, a knot about the size of an egg was discovered in its side, which had formed very suddenly and seemed to contain some hard substance. A physician was called and decided to cut open the knot. Upon doing so it was found to contain a china doll about two inches long, which the child had swallowed about a year since. The little one rapidly improved after the operation, and is now as well and lively as ever.—San Francisco Alta.

A WORD

TO THE WISE!

ONLY A FEW YEARS AGO THE people of British Columbia were paying Double Prices for nearly all their Dry Goods.

WHITE HOUSE

Broke up the Chain of High Prices, and old time dealers saw the trade passing them and THE WHITE HOUSE taking front rank. Partial reforms having been tried without avail, "Panic" stricken desperate efforts are now being made to dispose of the antiquated stores of unsalable goods. Flaming placards announcing immolation sales at ruinous sacrifices—(ninety-nine cents instead of a dollar) disfigure half the Dry Goods Stores on Government street.

The Cheap John plan is largely dealt in and catch-penny lines such as—19¾ cents, 49 cents, 74½ cents are conspicuous around these sepulchres of legitimate trade.

In a country where a silver dime is the smallest coin such exhibits are ridiculous enough to make a door-knob grin.

Commercial excrescences, called cheap sales, the outgrowth of trade depression, present strange incongruities, none appear greater than the spectacle of a well-to-do lady who can well afford to pay a fair price for whatever she may require, engaged in a scramble to procure the same for a few cents less.

At these Bi-annual "Sells" (the vernacular for Sales), Sale-o-maniacs lacking astuteness often find themselves in the condition of their purchase—"Sold."

THE WHITE HOUSE

Has no allies exploring the sweepings of the London warehouses for trash suitable to import specially for Bi-annual Cheap Sales; but should it become necessary in the course of business to have a Clearance it will be such as will make the short bit men meek as the biblical Prodigal Son when feeding the Shoats.

WITH ITS YEARS OF EXPERIENCE, ITS PERFECTED ARRANGEMENTS WITH LEADING ENGLISH AND EASTERN MANUFACTURERS, ITS ESTABLISHED AGENTS IN THE GREAT JOBBING MART, ITS IMMENSE STOCK AND HEAVY SALES, THE WHITE HOUSE CAN DO ALL IT PROMISES, VIZ:

FUTURE OF THE ENGLISH-SPEAKING RACES.

We have before us in pamphlet form an essay that was read before the convention of the North American St. George's Union, at Chicago, August 20th last, on the subject of the "Future Relations of the English-speaking Communities." When this essay is compared with Prof. Seeley's new book, "The Expansion of England," which we reviewed a short time ago, it is interesting to note the complete antithesis they form. The larger work looks forward to a final federation of England and her colonies, while the essay predicts an exactly opposite consummation. The writer of the essay describes the English-speaking communities as those political societies having their seats in the British Isles, North America, Australasia and South Africa, which have for a common inheritance the language, literature, laws and habitudes popularly described as Anglo-Saxon. Of the whole number of individuals constituting the group more than one-half are embodied in a single community occupying an extensive and compact territory (United States) although its characteristics are modified by extensive admixture with other race elements. "Bordering upon the United States is another member of the family, similarly possessed of an ample and contiguous territory, exercising political independence without formal sovereignty, pursuing somewhat less rigidly a like commercial policy, having a more active sense of the family unity, less affected by the presence of Teutonic and Celtic elements of population; but, on the other hand, joined with a numerous and persistent sub-society of Latin (French) origin and tendencies." In Australasia are several political organisms, Anglo-Saxon in descent and disposition, burdened at present with grave problems connected with the native tribes whom they have supplanted. In South Africa are two adjacent societies weighted by a native question still more perplexing than that of Australia. "Last in order of review comes the parent community, small as to its portion of the solid earth, but swarming, rich, industrious, progressive and enterprising. This member of the family has a domestic question of the first importance in the guise of a sub-community, amongst whose population poverty, ignorance, discontent, resentment and turbulence largely prevail." This, the writer says, is a hurried view of the relations of the English-speaking communities, and he adds: "The status and these relations are admittedly unsatisfactory, nor have they the elements of permanence. Will Canada, for example, be forever content with the fact of nationality, obscured as it is by the appearance of dependence? True, there is a sentimental satisfaction in the existing connection with the mother country, and that sentiment counts for much in human affairs, we know by universal experience and by the pain which Canadians feel at the mere suggestion of a change. But in the days when she shall be populous and rich, she must federate with Great Britain or separate from it. In these days every avenue to power and distinction must be open to her sons in a British Confederation, or she must endow them with satisfying careers in other directions. It cannot be that her statesmen will forever rest content with minor honors; nor, on the other hand, will the central government perpetually charge itself with the defence of Canada and her interests without an effective voice in the direction of her affairs and a substantial contribution in aid of imperial expenditure. And the case will be the same, in both aspects with regard to Australia and South Africa, though probably not so soon. What, then, are to be the relations of the future? The writer believes that the United States will continue her independent career, probably extending her boundaries, in time, to the Isthmus of Darien. Canada, grown too large for the present bonds, "will, doubtless, dally awhile with impossible schemes of confederation centering in the device of an imperial parliament and cabinet at London, and then take her place in the family of nations in the habit of a constitutional monarchy, presided over by a dynasty, deriving descent from the present beloved Queen. But the social fibre of the new kingdom will be found incapable of sustaining a throne and court, and the monarchy, so useful in bridging a chasm on the journey, will peacefully disappear, to be as quietly succeeded by a republic, constituted according to the lights of those later, and it may be better days." Then, our writer thinks, Canadians will begin to ask themselves why they should be separated from their brethren at their doors, and the end will be that they will quietly unite themselves with the United States. "The Australian colonies will, to all appearances, soon unite in a confederation much [illegible] that of Canada, and we may expect their after-career to resemble [illegible] save that, as the transition from colonial dependence to a republic will, doubtless, come later in point of time. It is likely to be made by a direct single step, and with this further exception, that the seat of national government will always remain in Australia, although the republic is destined to spread over the greater part of Oceanica. And the African colonies will in due time follow the same course. "But how will it fare with the dear old mother at home, after her children, all grown to manhood, shall have staated out in life for themselves? Will her glory or her fortune be dimmed, or her natural force abated? Confidently may go forth the answer: She will be no whit the less active, or happy, or flourishing. * * * And when law and government in Ireland shall have been established, upon the only true foundation, so that equity and reason are satisfied, folly and iniquity may vainly dash their heads against the rocks and England will have made a conquest at her very door worth to her far more than the boasted Indian empire." And England's destiny is to be the educator and moral and religious teacher of the world, which is the mission of the Anglo Saxon race. "Nowhere else will be found such concentration of numbers, wealth, culture, knowledge, leisure, social life, and of whatever else best ministers to the senses and faculties of civilized society. Whether for recreation or instruction, it is to England that the seeker will increasingly turn for his highest qualification."

CROWNER'S QUESTS.

The Guardian states in an item that "about twenty murders have been committed since the present government came into office." This is interesting. It is likewise untrue. A large quantity of rain has fallen in New Westminister lately, of which the Guardian has taken considerable notice, yet it has not blamed the present government, which it might have done with as much reason as bringing them to account for the number of murders. Several other sentences state that "it requires no great stretch of the imagination to suppose that our local rulers are the patrons of assassins;" that "they are dishonored by a group of irresponsible thugs called ministers." "The law that prohibits the holding of a coroner's inquest was prepared deliberately to shield assassins." With the first two sentences we will have nothing to say. They condemn themselves by their extravagance of expression. With the last we will merely state that the coroner's inquest law referred to was framed and passed by the late Walkem-Beaven government, who, according to the Guardian, are the friends of the murderer. Scarcely one coroner's bill was paid by the late government, and for this reason very few inquests were held. Since the present government came into power they have relaxed the law to such an extent that in the event of a coroner deeming it necessary to hold an inquest it can be done, and their fees paid.

THE NEWS.

The intelligence from Egypt is of a most disquieting character. Germany, Austria, Russia and France have protested against the division of the Egyptian revenues as proposed by Gladstone. It is to be feared that the liberals have succeeded at last in isolating Great Britain, and that she is not henceforth to be regarded as a member of the great European family.

CANNED SALMON.

What has been Done to Prove its Wholesomeness.

OFFICE OF THE AGENT GENERAL FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA, 36 FINSBURY CIRCUS, LONDON, E.C., 5th September, 1884.

TO THE EDITOR:—You will remember at a meeting held at the Health Exhibition on the 1st of June, it was arranged that Mr. Eugene Jones and myself should do what we could to have cookery demonstrations of tinned salmon at the lecture room in the exhibition, and if possible arrange for the press to be present.

We beg to state that in conformity with these instructions Mr. Eugene Jones sent a good supply of the article to Mrs. Clarke to be used for the lecture, and that very successful dishes, such as mayonnaise, croquette and scallop, &c., was prepared, and seemed to be highly appreciated by the audience, who took careful notes as the lectures proceeded.

We were not successful in getting the press to the lectures, and therefore considered the next best thing to do in the way of advertising was to insert the following paragraph, which appeared in several newspapers:

"In view of the importance of canned salmon as an article of diet, lectures with demonstrations are given at the International Health Exhibition under the superintendence of Mrs. Edith Clarke, lady superintendent of the National Training School of Cookery, South Kensington. Thursday is in particular set apart for demonstration, where canned salmon is cooked and served in three different ways—mayonnaise, croquette and scallop. Already there is exported annually from British Columbia canned salmon to the extent of 10,000,000 lbs., valued at about £200,000 sterling, and the trade is largely on the increase. The pack of the Pacific coast, the produce of all the rivers from Alaska in the north to the Sacramento river in the south, makes the total output annually in round figures one million cases, each containing 48 lbs. Of the above total Great Britain takes about 250,000 cases, the United States 300,000 cases, and Canada and Australia 70,000.

"The retail price of the best brands is about 7d or 8d per lb., and experts claim that on the two important points of economy and nutrition canned salmon compares favorably with any other article of diet."

We cannot conclude this report without acknowledging the valuable cooperation we received from Mrs. Edith Clarke, lady superintendent of the National Training School of Cookery.

Yours faithfully,
H. C. BEETON,
EUGENE E. JONES.

THE METHODIST CHURCH AND TEMPERANCE.

EDITOR COLONIST:—By order of the Victoria and New Westminster District of the Methodist Church, I have to request that you will kindly publish, for general information, the following report on temperance, adopted by the Toronto convention, re-written and adopted to provincial readers. Yours, &c.,

E. ROBSON.

Report on Temperance.

We would at this important period in the history of Methodism in Canada, reaffirm the sentiment, teaching and attitude of our branch of the Christian Church in reference to [illegible] which, considered in all its bearings, may be regarded as the question of the day, viz: Temperance. The sentiment of our church still is: "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak." Her teaching is: "Neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revelers, nor extortioners shall inherit the Kingdom of God." "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that puttest thy bottle to him, that makest him drunken also, that thou mayest look on their nakedness." Her attitude is one of uncompromising hostility to all that can intoxicate, and to whatever agency," individual or organized, puts the temptation of the wine cup in the way of men or women, especially of the young and those who have become weak by indulgence. Methodism has, since the days of Wesley, regarded the liquor traffic as, practically, a sin against God and a crime against humanity. As a church, we arraign and condemn the manufacture, sale, and use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. We consider it to be the duty of the State to prohibit, instead of licensing any social or moral evil. We gratefully acknowledge the existence and philanthropic labors of the various organizations for the suppression of this great evil, and pray that each of them may have the direction of infinite wisdom and the benediction of boundless grace. We would especially mention the "Woman's Christian Temperance Union," which by its self-denying labors has done so much to reclaim the drunkard, restore to home its happiness, and lead lost souls to the Savior. To sum up: (1) We regard the liquor traffic as antagonistic to, and destructive of the best interests, material, social and moral, of our country. (2) We believe prohibition to be the true remedy for this evil. (3) We consider the prevailing sentiment, and the extraordinary efforts now being put forth by the people, irrespective of creed, sex or party, as presenting convincing evidence that the proper time for enacting a prohibitory measure has come, and believing the "Canada Temperance Act" to be the best available means of accomplishing this object, we, the ministerial and lay members of the Toronto Conference of the Methodist church, do pledge ourselves heartily to unite in every lawful effort to pass and enforce this measure. (4) We would suggest more systematic church work in the cause of temperance, by the frequent and earnest presentation of the subject from the pulpit and the circulation of temperance literature and total abstinence pledges in the congregations, Sunday schools, and homes of our people. (5) We strongly recommend the use of unfermented wine at the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, in all our congregations.

Victoria Theatre and Hotel Co.

VICTORIA, Sept. 25.

TO THE EDITOR:—In an item in to day's COLONIST I see you say that the theatre shares are held by me at a premium. So far is this from the truth that I think it right to inform you, and through you the public, that a fee of $25 was offered to each of five responsible business men to induce them to take a transfer of these shares and in every case the offer was decidedly refused.

Yours, obediently,
E. M. JOHNSON.

[If the statement of which Mr. Johnson complains is "far from the truth," the fault is Mr. Johnson's. He was our informant that he was offering shares at a premium.—ED.]

The Temperance Convention.

Last evening, in the lecture room of the Methodist church, a large number of citizens of Victoria and temperance workers from New Westminster, Nanaimo and the local societies were assembled in temperance convention.

The Hon. John Robson occupied the chair and opened the meeting with a few appropriate remarks, after which there was considerable discussion in reference to affiliation with the Dominion Alliance. Discussion was also gone into on the question of making a test of the Scott act here to ascertain the pulse of the people on the question of prohibition, as that act virtually insured prhibition. Mention was also made of the fact that liquor was to be sold at the fair grounds during the exhibition, and that illegally.

Different speakers spoke on the various matters and committees were appointed to carry out the wishes of the meeting.

Mr. James McMillan moved that in the opinion of this meeting it would be desirable to form a connection with the Dominion Alliance, and that Messrs. Gray, Halfpenny, Spencer, McMillan and the chairman be a committee to go into and report on the matter.

This was seconded and unanimously carried.

It was moved by Mr. A. J. McLennan and seconded that Messrs. Hamilton, Spencer, Rudge and the mover be a committee to get information as to the legality of the sale of liquor at the exhibition, and if they found it was illegal, to take necessary measures to stop it.

After a vote of thanks to the chairman, the convention adjourned to meet again to day.

Terrible Accident on the Grand Trunk Railway.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 25.—Three Pullman cars and private car of Chief Engineer Hannaford, of the Grand Trunk express, for Montreal and Boston, left the track near Pickering station, between Toronto and Whitby, last night, owing to a broken frog, and went over a bank 25 feet high. At the time of the accident it was very dark, and the rain was pouring in torrents. The crash of the rolling cars, the screams of women and the groans and shrieks of the wounded, coupled with the intense darkness, all made a din and confusion which it was terrible to listen to. The horrors were multiplied when Chief Engineer Hannaford's coach took fire. The flames burned fiercely, despite the pouring rain, and quickly communicated to the Pullman coach that came next. A large number of townspeople quickly gathered and assisted in rescuing the passengers from the burning Pullman. As quickly as possible the passengers were collected together and the roll was called, when it was found about a dozen were injured, but none very seriously. How all escaped is a mystery. One of the coaches was smashed into kindling wood, and all were whirled over and over several times, yet many escaped absolutely unhurt, while most of the wounds are of a slight character. The injured persons were taken to Whitby, where medical aid was at once procured. The damage to the track and rolling stock is estimated to reach $100,000.

A Tule Life Preserver.

A new life preserver has been invented by C. Leduc, a resident of San Francisco. It is composed of tule reeds, comprising sixteen bunches, bound at each end with wire, and without the canvas covering so common to the cork life preservers. The Board of Inspectors of steam vessels at Washington has already adopted the new invention, and a factory for the manufacture of the life preservers is about to be established at Stockton. Goodall, Perkins & Co. are associated with the inventor in the enterprise, and it is the intention to immediately cut 200 tons of tule, sufficient for the production of a hundred thousand life preservers. A considerable number of men will also be employed. The average weight of the tule life preserver is four pounds; that of the cork, seven pounds. Besides being far cheaper, it is also claimed that the tule life preserver has double the buoyancy of that of the cork. The main objection to the cork life preservers, now in common use, is that straw, etc., are in their manufacture concealed inside the covering, thus rendering them virtually useless in time of danger. From the nature of its construction, the tule life preserver is free from all such defects.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—A woman who recently came from Honolulu and was admitted to the Pacific Dispensary for Women and Children was found to be suffering from leprosy. She will be sent back to the Hawaiian islands. She went to the hospital to be treated for cutaneous disease, and it was some time before the physicians discovered that it was a veritable case of leprosy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—The elopement mania has spread to this coast. On Tuesday evening, Kittie Graham, the thirteen-year-old daughter of John Graham, commission merchant, eloped with Harry E. Sanford, a married man, aged thirty. A marriage, but which Sanford to-day says was only a mock marriage, was performed the day following the elopement. Graham succeeded in finding out where his daughter was staying. She recounted to him all the circumstances, and the father afterwards had Sanford arrested on a charge of bigamy. It is considered doubtful if the charge of bigamy can be sustained, as no legal marriage took place. Search is being made for the man who officiated at the ceremony.

EASTERN STATES.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 25.—A disastrous fire broke out on South Side about 10:30 o'clock to-night and about midnight is still raging. A. B. Smith & Co.'s extensive glass works, covering two acres, together with Robinson, Rhea & Co.'s machinery and five frame dwellings, are already consumed, and as the buildings in the vicinity are of most combustible material it is feared the flames will get beyond the control of the fire department. Fortunately the wind is not very high. Loss so far is estimated at $200,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—There is in prospect serious trouble in this city between resident laborers and a gang of Italian and Hungarian laborers brought from New York by Thomas McCann of this city, who is contractor for $300,000 or $400,000 worth of sewer construction in this district. The laborers here are principally colored men, who have been receiving $1.50 per day, and it is said by them that the imported laborers are only to be paid 75 and 90 cents per day. A gang of 200 foreigners are encamped just outside the city limits and are employed on the boundary sewer. Washington laborers are very indignant over the importation of foreign laborers and are making threats.

ESQUIMALT-NANAIMO RAILWAY—Messrs. Graham and Busk returned from Oyster Bay yesterday. While there they located a place for quartering the men to be employed on the road. WEEKLY COLONIST to-day.

The Naval Review.

A BEAUTIFUL AND INTERESTING SIGHT.

The Day's Proceedings.

Yesterday morning dawned bright and beautiful, the warm rays of old Sol making the day as pleasant as in June. The rain of the previous morning had the effect of rendering the roads devoid of dust and nothing could have made it more agreeable for the naval review and inspection. At 9:30 the artillery, composed of one battery of blue jackets with two nine-pounder field pieces and two Gardiner guns, were landed at Spratt's wharf, and got into line on Store street near Johnson. A little later on, five companies of blue jackets, three companies of Royal Marine Light Infantry and one company of marine artillery, headed by the Swiftsure band, marched up from Rock Bay, where they had disembarked from the small craft of the fleet. Coming up with the artillery everything was soon in marching order, the artillery being first, then the band heading the marines, pioneers and ambulance corps, the infantry and marine artillery being last. The order was given and the little army marched to the martial tune of the "British Grenadiers" up Johnson, along Government to Humboldt, thence along that street to the park entrance and to the grounds at the hill. The men as they passed along with a quick firm step presented a fine appearance, nearly all being strapping fellows, the red coats and white helmets of the marines contrasting pleasingly with the light and dark blue uniforms and straw hats of the blue jackets.

The commander of the day was Capt. Brand, who arrived lately from England to take the place of Capt. Aitchison. Lieut. Langford was battalion leader; Lieut. Dare, right leader; Lieut. Vander-Byl, left leader; Lieut. the Hon. Bethel was in command of the artillery, and Maj. Robinson was in command of the marines. In all there would be about 600 officers and men in the field. Immediately after arrival at the hill the whole force was drawn into line, and Admiral Lyons, accompanied by Capt. Brand, and the Admiral's staff, inspected the men and their accoutrements. After inspection they marched past in column companies to the right, the battery marching in quick time. After countermarching with trailed arms, the whole force marched past in quarter column on the double, moving almost as one man, and changing the step to marching time with truly wonderful unison. After the halt was made the order was given to pile arms, and a general charge was made on the canteen, where refreshment in the shape of beer was dispensed to the thirsty troops.

At 11 the bugle sounded fall in, and wheeling in quarter column, they again formed line and went through the manual and firing exercise, showing their thorough drill training by the simultaneous movements of the whole line, the volley firing being like one shot. They then broke into columns to the right, formed into companies, and the order was given for quick march. The battery was then put through the firing exercise, No. 1 gun firing splendidly several times in quick succession, No. 2 gun not working satisfactorily. On the order being given to dismount the guns, a few seconds saw their different parts distributed in various portions of the field. The infantry then advanced in skirmishing fire with reserves in the rear, which were brought up gradually until all were in action, and fusilade after fusilade of rattling shots filled the air. They then advanced on the double quick with cheers, the artillery mounted their pieces and came up, and then the total force formed into companies again and retired in order.

Pile arms was again sounded and another onslaught made on the canteen, after which they reformed and marched in one column of four deep in the same order in which they came, down the park road to the new wharf, where they embarked and proceeded to their respective vessels at Esquimalt.

The whole of the morning's proceedings were very interesting, and were witnessed by a large number of spectators from a commanding position on the hillside. The varied uniforms of the different companies, the enlivening strains of the Swiftsure band, and the hill dotted with carriages filled with the fair sex, and hundreds of sight-seers on foot made the whole a most beautiful picture. Everything passed off without accident or mar, and the review of our country's defenders was productive of much pleasure to those who witnessed it.

School Holiday.

The Victoria school trustees have decided to give the children under their charge a holiday to-day. The schools will therefore be closed and the young people will have an opportunity at the show grounds of seeing what the busy workers of the world are about. The action of the trustees is altogether to be commended.

DROWNING ACCIDENT. — On Tuesday Miss Mary Van Cleave, daughter of Judge Van Cleave of Pacific county, W. T., was drowned. She started to go to the post-office in a row boat, and it is supposed that while stooping to bail out some water in the bottom of the boat she slipped, struck her head and fell stunned into the water. When found she had a bad bruise on her face, and this seems the most probable explanation of the accident, as, being an excellent swimmer, she could otherwise have saved herself.

THE WEEKLY COLONIST will be issued at an early hour this morning. It is the largest and admittedly the best publication in the province and is sent to any part of Canada or the United Kingdom free of postage. Copies may be had at the publication office and the bookstores.

EXHIBITION PROGRAMME.—A handsomely illustrated and printed programme of the exhibition for to-day and to-morrow has been issued from THE COLONIST job office, published by W. H. Ellis. Copies can be procured at Frank Campbell's corner or at the exhibition grounds.

SALE AT THE FAIR.—Mr. Geo. Byrnes will offer at the fair, to-morrow, at 1 p.m., twenty head of fine horses.

NEW MAINS.—New water-work mains of larger diameter have been placed on Cormorant street, between Store and Douglas street.

METHODIST BAZAAR.—The ladies of the Methodist church intend holding a bazaar about the first week in December. They also wish to dispose of a first-class piano, having no further use for it. The piano can be seen at the parsonage. *1m

STEEL RAILS have advanced.

DEATH OF THE NAKED MAN!

He Dies in His Cell Yesterday Morning.

At 20 minutes to 7 o'clock yesterday morning, as one of the keepers at the prison was passing the cell of George F. Tilbury, the veterinary surgeon, who was taken to gaol the other evening for safe-keeping on account of mental trouble, he saw Tilbury standing at his cell door with his face squeezed through the wicket.

"Good morning," saluted the guard.

"Good morning," replied the prisoner. "Look here, I'm going to the Driard House to get my breakfast."

"Are you better!" asked the keeper.

"Better! I'm well. Never was sick. And I've got a rushing appetite. See here—look! have the horses put in the carriage for me at sharp eight. Get the grays."

"All right," replied the keeper and passed out with a prisoner who was to perform his ablutions at the tap.

In a few minutes the keeper and the abluted prisoner passed Tilbury's cell again. The face had disappeared from the wicket. The keeper peered into the cell, but saw no one. He called, but got no answer. All was as still as death. This he considered strange as the unfortunate man had maintained a continual outcry ever since his committal. Calling another keeper the two opened the door and entered the cell. There lay Tilbury, divested of all clothing, stone dead on the floor! In the interval that had elapsed between the conversation and the return of the keeper, the prisoner had fallen backward from the wicket and died instantly. His face was somewhat bruised and his hands cut, for in his paroxysms he had beaten his face and hands against the door and wall and so wounded himself.

Dr. Helmcken was called in and certified that death resulted from natural causes; therefore there will be no inquest. The deceased was aged about 45 years. He was a native of England. Many years ago he was a veterinary surgeon in the British army; afterwards he was traveler for a San Francisco hardware house, and then a theatrical agent, subsequently settling in Victoria as a veterinary surgeon. His mind gave symptoms of failing about a week ago.

The Show.

Articles and animals were hurried into the hall and enclosure yesterday afternoon and evening and exhibits will be received to-day. The shelves and tables in the pavilion were pretty well filled by sunset. Judges are requested to meet at the pavilion at 10 o'clock this morning. The Women's Christian Union have erected a temperance refreshment booth on one side of the pavilion and Mr. S. Clay a booth for the sale of spirits on the other. Admiral Lyons and staff will be present at the opening, which will be at 2 p. m., when Hon. Mr. Smithe will deliver a few remarks and formally open the exhibition. The artillery band will be in attendance thsoughout the day. In the evening the pavilion and grounds will be brilliantly illuminated by the electric light, Superintendent McMicking having introduced the necessary apparatus. "Jumbo" leveled the ground yesterday. It is hoped that this will be the most successful exhibition ever held in the province.

SHIPMASTER DROWNED.—Capt. Nelson, of the American bark Ella S. Thayer, loading lumber at Portland, was missed by his officers on Tuesday morning, and when a search for him proved fruitless the river was dragged and his body recovered from the water. He was troubled with sleeplessness, and it is supposed that he climbed down the ship's side into a boat and, then falling asleep, fell into the water and was drowned.

CHINAMEN OUTWITTED.—Seven Chinese from Victoria were captured in Port Townsend on Wednesday and taken before U. S. Commissioner Allen Weir, who ordered all but two of them to be returned to British Columbia. A. L. Peterson, charged with assisting them across the line, was held to answer before the district court in $500 bonds.

UPPER COUNTRY.—Mr. S. Levy returned from a business tour through the interior yesterday. He reports that crops have been garnered and that the harvest is large. Kamloops has begun to grow with considerable rapidity. Many houses are going up there. Mr. Scott, a farmer in Nicola Valley has found a quartz ledge on his land, rock from which assays $64.50 in silver and $10 in gold.

RISKY. — The American tug Goliah towed the bark W. H. McNeil from Burrard Inlet, and as she could not tow from port to port she let the vessel go near Race Rocks, on which she came very near drifting and would probably have done so had not the Alexander come to her assistance.

THE CHINESE. — The Ottawa Sun in speaking of the Chinese commission and immigration says: Our workingmen expect a stringent measure to restrict Chinese immigration and they will take nothing less. British Columbia in particular will insist upon this, and its demands will be backed up by the more eastern provinces. The question must be boldly grappled with, and no half-way measure will do.

LOTS OF RICE.—The steamer Yosemite went to the outer wharf yesterday afternoon for the purpose of taking aboard 1,600 mats of rice consigned to A. Ondordonk. On her last trip she took up a consignment of 600 shovels for the same contractor.

AUCTION SALE.—To-day, on the premises, J. P. Davies & Co. will sell all the furniture, groceries, etc., in the estate of Adler and wife, including the lease of the Globe hotel.

SALMON.—Marvin & Tilton will ship 4,000 cases of salmon per steamer Mexico, from the British American Packing Co., for San Francisco.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT. — The Yosemite brought down the balance of the electric light apparatus to be used in lighting the exhibition grounds this evening.

DEATH AT PORT MOODY.—John McI. Cameron, a native of Nova Scotia, aged 33 years, died at Port Moody on Saturday evening.

THE steamer Otter left this morning for Departure Bay and New Westminster to tow down a load of lumber in the barge Maude, recently changed from a steamer into a barge.

THE GOSPEL STEAMER. — The steamer Amelia towed the gospel steamer down from New Westminster yesterday to have her engines put in.

Y. M. C. A.—A meeting of all who are interested in the welfare of the young of this city will be held at the school room of the M. E. church on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock.

Nanaimo.

(Free Press.)

Samuel Price and party, who arrived from Alberni late on Friday night, have completed the clearing of the trail for the entire distance. Mr. Price reports that the crops are good at Alberni, especially potatoes, Mr. Merryfield having secured sixty sacks where he planted only three.

In our last issue we alluded to the great yield of potatoes in Mr. A. G. Horne's garden in this city and invited those to beat it who could. It is beaten. Messrs. Quennell & Veale, of Cedar district, planted in the spring on their farm 20 pounds of seed potatoes of the Snowflake variety and a few days ago harvested 600 pounds of beautiful large potatoes as the produce of the 20 pounds.

The steamer Buzz left yesterday morning with Mr. Harry Bolton (formerly overman of the Chase River mine), Jas. Mackey and several others for Campbell river, near Willow point, for the purpose of opening up a mine on the property belonging to Mr. Dupont and others. The seam about to be opened is situated five or six miles from the coast and near Campbell river. This ground has been prospected and several fine outcrops have been discovered. It is now the intention of the original owners, with whom are now associated several San Francisco capitalists, to sink into the seam and thoroughly test it. If it proves satisfactory a railway and shipping facilities will be at once constructed. Willow point is about ninety miles north of Nanaimo and thirty miles above Comox.

THE BAZAAR.—The bazaar at Humboldt Hall closed last evening, having realized $800. The following ladies presided at the tables: Mrs. E. Dickenson, Mrs. A. A. Green, Mrs. Thos. Harris, Mrs. De-Weidorhold, Mrs. G. A. McTavish, Mrs. Higgins, Miss McNeil, Mrs. M J. Hamilton, Miss Helmcken, Miss F. Heathorn, the Misses Hartnagel, Miss Jesse, the Misses Young, Mrs. Bushby, the Misses Mowat, Miss Pemberton, the Misses Carmichael, Mrs. D. R. Harris, manageress. Mr. Fell won the principal article, a child's bed.

NANAIMO RIVER BRIDGE.—The Nanaimo Free Press gives a thorough description of the new bridge just erected over the Nanaimo river. Experts state that the work has been completed in a satisfactory manner, and the Free Press says the bridge is a credit to the government and all connected with its construction.

PORT MOODY ROAD.—The Columbian says that in consequence of excessive rains this road is in a very bad state of repair, and that in consequence of the mails and express and freight going via Port Moody during the winter months it is of the utmost importance that it should be put in good order at once.

NITRO-GLYCERINE and black powder works will shortly be built somewhere on the Island. Probably at Victoria.

PUTTING A FLY TO WORK.

He Wakes His Master Every Morning and Goes to Breakfast with Him.

The master of ceremonies of a Sansom street saloon gave his sloppy bar an energetic wipe at half-past 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Then with the same towel he gave the same bar a vicious slap. After this he eagerly investigated the spot where he had struck. A badly-demoralized fly was trying in three sections to get to his corner before time was called for another round. Whack! came the towel again. Then the biggest piece of the fly picked itself up and sailed airily off, followed by an ejaculation of pained surprise that set off the sulphur matches on the counter.

"See him go off without his back," said the disgusted tapster. "He'll come back and tickle my nose and laugh at me. "You can't kill 'em," continued the bartender, wearily. "Leastways there's only one way to kill 'em."

"What's that?" asked the arbiter of the destinies of the oyster bar, who had sympathizingly watched his colleague's struggle.

"Let 'em drink themselves to death," replied the bartender, solemnly. "Look at that floor."

All hands did as directed. The floor was a marble one, into which the day's droppings of beer and blowings of froth could not soak. Millions of flies staggered over it with wide-open mouths and drank the sticky fluid. Thousands of flies, with a drunken buzz in their wings, circled tipsily at a height of about two inches above it, and strove in vain to get a little higher. Hundreds of other flies lay on their backs in the corners, with their legs either waving deliriously in the air or folded limply across their stomachs. They were sleeping a drunken sleep from which they never could awake.

After the bartender, the oyster-opener, and their customers had contemplated the awful sight long enough to take warning from it, the bartender continued: "When it's quiet here you can hear all them live flies suckin' beer—sounds like a man goin' fur the last drop in an empty lemonade glass. Then I've heard them drunken flies snorin' like tramps in an alley. But if it wasn't for the vicious practices of them bum flies killin' 'em, they'd drive us out."

"I do not like to hear such talk about flies," said a man who had been imbibing beer by himself at one end of the bar. "I have a little fly of my own at home that I love."

Everybody turned and looked at the speaker. He was a very fat man, with a red face and a black chin-beard. He wore an imitation seer-sucker coat, which was open across a vast expanse of limp shirt bosom.

"Give the gentleman a pint of them large blue-bottles, George," said the bartender, sarcastically, to the oyster-opener. The fat man wiped the perspiration invoked by eight glasses of imported Kaiser from his forehead and calmly continued:

"I am from Frankford."

"That settles it!" said the bartender, who immediately began to wipe glasses and appeared to lose all interest in the fat man's narrative. The latter paid no attention to the slight, but went on:

"I do not want a pint of dissolute blue-bottles. I only allow one fly in my room. He is a temperate fly. He has to be. Attention to his duties demands it. He is a trained fly."

"Trained for what?" asked a Seventh ward politician; "pianner playin?"

"No; trained to wake me up in the morning."

"Sho!" said the bartender, with reawakened interest.

"It is a fact," said the Frankford man. "I have been the victim of oversleeping all my life. I lost a position as conductor on the Pennsylvania railroad because I never wake up in time to take an early train out. I also lost the hand and prospects of a wealthy farmer's daughter because I didn't wake up in time to be married, and so disgraced the girl by not appearing at the church. I have tried all remedies, even to sitting up all night. I expressly picked out my present boarding-house because the landlady said that she had a chambermaid who could remember to wake up the boarders. This, of course, was untrue. I tried an alarm clock once. After the first morning it didn't phaze me.

"Last autumn I found this fly. I call him Dicky. He was a poor, starved, frozen little morsel, lying more than half dead on the window-sill of my boarding-house dining-room. I laid a drop of warm soup beside him on the sill. He gave a grateful buzz and ate his way through the soup. Ever after that he flew and perched affectionately on my nose at meal time, and instead of helping himself from my plate waited for me to feed him.

"I began then to realize that the singular intelligence and regularity of that fly might prove him to be the cure for my fatal sleepiness. I took him to my room and imprisoned him, without food, for a day in a bottle. When it grew dark I took the cork out and left him free to come out as soon as daylight came. I relied on his hunger to drive him to me for food. I was right. In the morning I grew dimly conscious of an unusual noise. It sounded like a fat-ob saw-mill. First I heard it in one ear then in the other. It half-awakened me. Then I felt a tickling sensation on my nose. I was about to let out a terrible slap toward the sensation when I remembered my fly. I at once dressed and went to breakfast with him.

"I was overjoyed. The next day, however, was a disappointment. Dicky had so gorged himself after this fast that he too overslept himself. Again I starved him. Again he awakened me. This thing kept up a week. Only on alternate days would he waken me up. At the end of that time he had entered into my scheme, and since then has never missed a day. He arises as soon as day-light enters the room. By a simple but ingenious device I have fixed my window-shades so that it comes in just when I want it. You see——"

The man from Frankford turned. Everybody had left the room except the bartender, who was snoring behind the bar.

"Good-by," said the Frankford man; "I must hurry home to give Dicky his supper."—Philadelphia Times.

"I understand," said a cow-county politician, walking into the office of the local paper the other day, revolver in hand, "I understand that you called me a liar in your paper this morning?" "So I did, my dear sir," said the editor, calmly, "but I only said you were a campaign liar." "Oh! Is that all?" said the mollified intruder, and after tendering the molder of public opinion his fine-cut, he walked peacefully out.

The Norwegian Horse.

The small, plump, cream-colored animal in front of you has a number of distinctly Norwegian traits which are certain to excite a measure of interest. He displays an almost human degree of intelligence in accurately adjusting his actions to the circumstances in which he happens to find himself. Whips being a luxury in the country, and more often than not dispensed with, the shrewd quadruped proceeds at the outset to discover in a thoroughly methodical and almost scientific manner whether his new driver possesses one of these objectionable instruments. He begins by turning his head, which is unincumbered with blinkers and by this process is able to frame an initial hypothesis. He then goes on to verify his conjectures by a number of tentative experiments such as stopping short some yards this side of a hill or gate. He seems thoroughly to understand the conditions on which he is let out to the tourist, and knows his duty far too well to allow himself to be overworked and so rendered unfit for to-morrow's task in his owner's meadows. He will trot down a steep hill at a rate that is calculated to frighten a novice, but strenuously insists on taking every rise, however gradual, at a creeping pace. This is apt to exasperate the average British tourist, who has imported the habits of city life into these sequestered regions, and who calculates on time. But the experienced Norwegian traveler knows better than to make rigid calculations.—Saturday Review.

Emerson's Americanism.

Emerson's Americanism, therefore was Americanism in its last and purest analysis, which is giving him high praise, and to America great hope. But I do not mean to pay him, who was so full of modesty and humility, the ungrateful compliment of holding him up as the permanent American ideal. It is his tendencies, his quality, that was valuable, and only in a minor incipient degree his actual results. All human results must be strictly limited, and according to the epoch and outlook. Emerson does not solve for all time the problem of the universe; he solves nothing; but he does what is far more useful—he gives a direction and impetus to lofty human endeavor. He does not anticipate the lessons and the discipline of the ages, but he shows us how to deal with circumstances in such a manner as to secure the good instead of the evil influence. New conditions, fresh discoveries, unexpected horrors opening before us, will, no doubt, soon carry us beyond the scope of Emerson's surmise; but we shall not easily improve upon his aim and attitude. In the space beyond the stars there may be marvels such as it has not entered into the mind of man to conceive; but there, as here, the right way to look will still be upward, and the right aspiration be still towards humbleness and charity.—Julian Hawthorne in The Manhattan for August.

Summer Board.

"Summer board! What's that?" asks little Jimmy Jenkins, spelling out the letters of an advertisement in a morning paper.

"Come here, my son, and look at me," replied his papa. "I am summer bored, very much bored."

"You, papa?"

"Yes, my child. If a man, obliged to sit all day long on the piazza of a summer hotel and to listen to a lot of women talk gossip as they swap pieces of silk for crazy quilts, isn't summer bored, I should like to know who is, that's all."

"But you're not a board, papa."

"No, my child, literally speaking I am not, but please God, I shall be to-morrow morning—aboard the train for New York, and business will detain me there for several days. Now run and hand your mother that piece of crushed pineapple ribbon that the wind has blown from her lap, and tell her what I say, while I finish reading the paper."—The Judge.

Soft Wood for Fuel.

In portions of the country where hickory, maple, and white oak abound, little use is made of the soft woods as fuel. Many regard them as nearly worthless for that purpose. In the west, where wood for fuel is scarce, farmers have been advised to plant hardwood trees for producing firewood. They have been told that hardwood is worth twice as much as soft for heating and cooking purposes, while the expense of cutting and hauling is nearly the same. Admitting all these statements to be correct, it does not follow that it is advisable to plant trees producing hardwood if the object is to obtain fuel in the shortest time possible. The maple, hickory, beech, and white oaks are of very slow growth. Trees set out in one's childhood will not be of very large size when the planter reaches old age. Most of these trees will not grow well except on soils that are very favorable to them. Willows, poplars, and whitewood trees, however, will grow almost anywhere. They are easily propagated by cuttings as well as by sowing the seed. Their growth is very rapid. Especially is this the case with the various kinds of willows. They are among the first trees to put out leaves in the spring, and they continue to grow until heavy frosts appear in the fall. Good fuel can be obtained from willow trees that have been planted out but five or six years. As soon as the trunks are cut off sprouts will appear, which in the course of a few years will become stately trees. The wood is certainly not the best. It is, however, very easily obtained, and will prove better than most persons suppose. The trees should be felled and the wood cut in suitable lengths early enough in the season to allow it to become thoroughly seasoned before the approach of winter. It will dry well if the bark remains on the wood. Many think that it dries better if the sticks stand nearly upright than if they are corded up. When dry, the wood should be protected from the rain and snow.

Prof. Jaeger would have everything worn by mankind made from sheep's wool, which must be either white or dyed with harmless chemical colors, no aniline colors being permissible. Experience, he maintains, has shown that knit woolen fabric is the best. Over this underclothing plain upper clothing should be worn, no overcoats, no great-coats, no cloaks finding a place in his ideal costume. As the breast must be well protected, the portions of the garments covering it are made of a double layer of fabric for ladies as well as gentlemen. Hats and caps, he insists, should also be made of wool. Beds must likewise be made of sheep's wool. Floors of dwellings, he holds, should properly be oiled, and the furniture used of varnished.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

PRIVATE BILLS.

ALL APPLICATIONS FOR PRIVATE BILLS, properly the subject of legislation by the Legislative Assembly of British Columbia, within the purview of the "British North American Act, 1867," whether for the erection of a Bridge, the making of a Railroad, Turnpike Road, or Telegraph Line; the construction or improvement of a Harbour, Canal, Lock, Dam or Slide, or other like work; the granting of a right of Ferry; the incorporation of any particular trade or calling, or of any Joint Stock Company; or otherwise for granting to any individual or individuals any exclusive or peculiar rights or privileges whatever, or for doing any matter or thing which in its operation would affect the rights or property of other parties, or relate to any particular class of the community; or for making any amendment of a like nature to any former Act—shall require a Notice, clearly and distinctly specifying the nature and object of the application to be published as follows:—

A notice inserted in the BRITISH COLUMBIA GAZETTE and in one newspaper published in the District affected, or if there be no newspaper published therein, then in a newspaper in the next nearest District in which a newspaper is published.

Such notice shall be continued in each case for a period of at least six weeks, during the interval of time between the close of the next preceding Session and the consideration of the Petition.

Before any petition, praying for leave to bring in a Private Bill for the erection of a Toll Bridge is presented to the House, the person or persons intending to petition for such a Bill shall, upon giving the notice prescribed by the preceding rule, also at the same time and in the same manner, give notice of the rates which they intend to ask, the extent of the privilege, the height of the arches, the interval between the abutments or piers for the passage of rafts and vessels, and mentioning also whether they intend to erect a drawbridge or not, and the dimensions of the same.

The Cotsford-Payne Boat Race.

SIR:—HAVING TAKEN GREAT INTEREST IN aquatic sports for a number of years, permit me explain what many spectators of the boat race on Saturday last considered a bad start.

Heretofore the starting stakes in James Bay have been placed in a line parallel with the general run of Dallas road, the course having been around Deadman's Island and back.

Before the Cotsford Payne race it was agreed that the line of the stakes in James Bay and the line of the stakes to be rounded above Deadman's Island should be laid out parallel with the second Esquimalt bridge. The bearing of the bridge is S.W. and N. E. nearly. The stakes above the bridge were laid very nearly S.W. and N.E.; but a serious error occurred in placing the James Bay starting stakes. The latter were laid N.W. and S.E., or at right angles to the second Esquimalt bridge.

This mistake made a considerable difference in the distances to be rowed by the two men. If the line of the stakes in James Bay had been set parallel to the shore line, that is, E. and W., Payne's boat would have been placed at the start 661 feet nearer Dallas road. If the line had been laid off S.W. and N.E., parallel to the Esquimalt bridge and the line of the upper stakes, Payne's boat at the start would have been 127 ft nearer Dallas road; Cotsford's boat in each instance being in the position it actually started from. I have assumed the distance between the stakes to have been 90 feet. All the bearings are magnetic. JARVIS LONGHURST.
